Understanding Embezzlement Charges in Utah

Embezzlement is a serious white-collar crime that involves the misappropriation of funds entrusted to an individual. In Utah, embezzlement is considered a form of theft and is prosecuted under theft statutes. The severity of the charges and potential penalties depend on the value of the property embezzled:

- Less than $500: Class B misdemeanor, up to 6 months in jail and/or up to $1,000 in fines
- $500 to $1,500: Class A misdemeanor, up to 1 year in jail and/or up to $2,500 in fines
- $1,500 to $5,000: Third-degree felony, up to 5 years in prison and/or up to $5,000 in fines
- $5,000 or more: Second-degree felony, 1-15 years in prison and/or up to $10,000 in fines

In addition to these penalties, a conviction can result in:

- Restitution: You may be ordered to repay the embezzled funds.
- Professional consequences: Loss of professional licenses, difficulty finding employment.
- Personal impact: Damage to reputation, strained relationships with family and friends.

Key elements prosecutors must prove for an embezzlement conviction in Utah:

1. A fiduciary relationship existed between the defendant and the victim.
2. The defendant acquired the property through this relationship.
3. The defendant wrongfully used or transferred the property for personal gain.
4. The defendant intended to deprive the rightful owner of the property.

Common defenses against embezzlement charges include:

- Lack of intent to deprive the owner of property
- Consent or authorization from the property owner
- Mistaken belief of ownership or right to use the property
- Insufficient evidence to prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt

Given the complexity of embezzlement cases and the severe consequences of a conviction, it's crucial to have experienced legal representation. At Wasatch Defense Lawyers, we understand the nuances of Utah's embezzlement laws and can build a strong defense strategy tailored to your specific situation.
