

Grievous Sexual Offenses

W wasatchdefenselawyers.com/grievous-sexual-offenses

When someone is charged with a sex crime in the state of Utah, a conviction will completely and irreparably change that individual's life forever. We are ready to listen to your situation without any judgment. We can offer you our expert legal opinion and advise you on the best steps to take to protect you, your rights, and defend yourself against these accusations.

What Does Grievous Mean?

Grievous bodily harm is the phrase used to describe a serious injury that often leaves an individual with permanent complications. Examples of possible grievous injuries include traumatic brain injuries, bone fractures, and internal organ damage stemming from traumatic injuries.

Grievous Sexual Offenses in Utah

Sexual offenses can be considered grievous. The nature and severity of the injuries are frequently considered when deciding whether or not to enhance the penalties following a conviction.

For example, if an individual has a prior conviction of a sexual offense and is found guilty of a subsequent one, the prior offense could be used as justification to deliver an individual life in prison without the possibility of parole (LWOP).

In the state of Utah, there are a few examples of grievous sexual offenses. Some of these include:

It is important to remember that if someone has been convicted of one of the above crimes in another state, Utah will consider that conviction to be the first conviction of a “grievous sexual offense.”

Contact a Legal Defense Attorney in Utah for a Free Case Review

Regardless of how baseless the accusations are, how much evidence points towards your innocence, or how pristine your reputation might be in the community, grievous sexually offenses are always serious. No matter what the case looks like, anyone convicted of a grievous sexual offense is in danger of losing everything. Therefore, having the right legal defense team in your corner is vital when facing sex crime charges.

If you have been accused of a sex crime in the state of Utah, our criminal lawyers are willing and able to provide assistance. Call today or complete our online contact form to schedule a review of your case free of charge or obligation.