What is Considered Object Rape of a Child?

You may be charged with a crime that you don't even really understand. If you are accused of this crime, you need to be clear on the charges against you and the potential punishments for conviction. Utah Code 76-5-402.2 defines object rape as causing penetration of the genital or anal opening of another person by a foreign object without her or his consent.

For this action to be the crime named above, the victim must be a child 13 years old or younger. To be classed as this crime, the object can be anything, including a human body part, other than a human mouth or genitals.

Further, to commit this crime, the accused must have acted with the intention of causing the alleged victim significant bodily or emotional pain or of causing the arousal of sexual desire in any person.

Penalties for Object Rape of a Child in Utah

Object rape is a First Degree felony in Utah, which is punishable by a minimum of 5 years to a maximum of life in prison. As you can see, the penalties for rape offenses of this kind are among the highest of any felony. So, you need an experienced Utah child sex crimes lawyer with a good track record of winning these kinds of cases.

If the convicted person is found to have caused severe physical injury to the victim or was under age 30 when he/she committed the crime, the sentence may be raised to a 15-year minimum sentence to a maximum of life in prison.

If the convicted person had a prior conviction for a serious sex crime at the time of the object rape offense, he/she may receive a minimum sentence of 15 years to a maximum of life in prison.

There are some cases in which the circumstances are such that it is determined that justice is better served by allowing a minimum sentence of 6 years to a maximum of 10 years or life in prison.

As you can see, penalties for object rape of a child in Utah vary widely, largely due to the quality of the Salt Lake City sex crimes lawyer you have fighting your case.
