Frequently Asked Questions

---

What is sexual battery under Utah law?

---

Sexual battery in Utah is defined under Utah Code § 76-9-702.1. It involves intentionally touching another person's intimate parts without their consent, and the act must be done for sexual arousal, gratification, or abuse. Intimate parts include the genitals, buttocks, or breasts. The law distinguishes this from other sex crimes, such as rape or sexual assault, based on the level of contact and the presence of penetration. Even though it is typically classified as a Class A misdemeanor, a conviction carries serious consequences, including potential jail time and sex offender registration.
